Synopsis:

Two best friends who spend their lives either high or asleep, attempt to break their record of the “Kessel Run”; a game they play involving stealing a specific list of items from a gas station in the shortest amount of time possible. However, this time around, there is an active alien invasion that is taking place, something that seems to be known to everyone on Earth except for them.

Character Breakdowns:

DUSTY

*Male (lead), any ethnicity, 25 - 30 years old - * Must know how to play Guitar **

Dusty is someone who doesn't really acknowledge how much time he exactly wastes. He's someone who, if he can, will put things off until tomorrow. He very much floats his way through life. He's not too sure of what he'll do in the future, nor does he care. At one point in his life, Dusty wanted to be a musician – he grew up playing the guitar and was actually very good at it. Over the years his passion for music has dwindled, particularly after he was denied acceptance to a conservatory to study music upon graduating high school. Since then, Dusty has adopted a “better to not try at all, than to try and fail” mindset. To him, getting worked up and emotionally invested into something that isn't guaranteed is just setting yourself up for failure and disappointment.

LEAF

Male (co-lead), any ethnicity, 25 - 30 years old

Leaf makes Dusty look like the hardest working person you can imagine. He's a loudmouth who always has a comeback. Unlike Dusty, he actually has a strong vision for his future. Leaf wants to be a writer, however he lacks the will to actually make it a reality. For the past several years he has been writing a novel. It is clearly not a genuine priority for him, though. This novel he's writing is something he likes to talk about to make it sound like he is more productive than he is. In reality, Leaf is scared and insecure about his own skills as a writer and a human overall.

 Must be comfortable with fake vomit, fake pee effects, and smoking herbal substitutes for weed
